Celebrating and Sharing God's Love

Zwingli Hill News

January/February 2021

Vol. 59 No. 1

To everything there is a season, and a time for every purpose under heaven. Ecclesiastes 3:1

I felt called by God into interim ministry here at Zwingli in the spring of 2017, fully aware that it was for a season and it was to serve a purpose. None of us had any idea it would be as long a season as it turned into, and it took a while to get a sense of purpose. But from the start, I knew and stayed ready for when the season would end. I've always loved the change of seasons in nature, and I'm very ready for the change of seasons coming to Zwingli UCC.

Clearly, it is often in retrospect that we recognize how active a role God is playing in the situations in our lives. I arrived, thinking my primary purpose was to observe, assess, share my observations, and be on my way to some other ministerial setting fairly quickly. I knew I instantly loved being in ministry with you here at Zwingli. I had known and respected Pastor Butch for many years and was delighted to have the opportunity to share ministry with him. I quickly recognized how important it was for him to have the assistance and support that he had been lacking for a number of months prior to my arrival in order to do the level of ministry he wanted to be offering.

I was thankful for the flexibility in my life that allowed me to suggest that we use 2018 as a stabilizing year – not rushing too quickly to assume we knew what we were looking for, and providing a chance for Pastor Butch to complete his sabbatical. It also gave me more time to look at the strengths and needs of our congregation. It became increasingly clear that Zwingli is blessed with a wealth of young families who needed to be very purposefully ministered to. It was a delight to see them come together for mutual support and sharing. Busy schedules make it challenging to find good meeting times. I am so thankful that Zwingli made the decision to seek a fulltime Associate Pastor with the focus on our youth, young adults and young families. I'm positive our young families will benefit from that choice.

I am not going to pretend for a moment that it will be easy leaving my ministry here with you, but at the same time, I am very happy for the change that is coming. As a congregation, you have been wonderfully receptive to my ministry and supportive of me individually. You responded with caring and support when I risked coming out to all of you as a lesbian pastor. You showed up for prayer vigils and helped out with Balloon Brigades. The Evangelism Committee latched onto my suggestion of a prayer bench on Wile Avenue and made it happen. You kindly made room for our young families at the front of the sanctuary when I asked you to, and endured the first Holy Humor Sunday I ever did.

Although I will be following the ministerial guidelines that require me to distance myself from you in ways that may seem harsh, but are really wise – like ending Facebook friendships, assuring you if we run into each other in the grocery store we won't talk about Zwingli, and if I end up doing ministry at another UCC church in the area, please don't visit – you will always have a special place in my heart.

I hope you all realize the incredible wealth of talent, expertise, and resources you have in your congregation. There is enough collective wisdom to present professional quality Adult Elective classes every Sunday of the year (probably without anyone teaching more than once). It has been a joy to watch the Adult Electives Team create session after session. Please let them know what you can share.

I have been in awe of our Educators since the first time I walked into one of their meetings. Zwingli has wonderfully dedicated folks who teach and plan and assist and lead and support each other. Please keep encouraging them, and volunteering when you can. They need a chance to refill their wells, too.

I am most appreciative of the Elders, the Search Committee and the Human Resource Committee. They showed incredible concern for me throughout this process – especially those times we thought change might be coming and it just wasn't right. I am soooo thankful that everyone held out for what truly feels like the right fit. I am confident that Pastor Alan is going to do wonderful things at Zwingli. I fully trust you will give him the same support and encouragement you have shown me.

And finally, I must say - Pastor Butch is like the younger brother I never had. Doing ministry with him has been the highlight of my ministerial career. We will both grieve the end of our work together, but we part as lasting friends. I believe you all know how blessed you are to have Lisa Cinciripini as your office administrator. She does an amazing ministry every day and rescued me more times than I can count. Please let her know often how appreciated she is.

I'll be with you for a few more weeks. My final Sunday will be February 14th when I will preach my final sermon. As plans get finalized, we'll let you know what those "good-byes" will look like. The Elders seem to be making some plans. In the meantime, I have a really messy office to clean up. Thank you for being the awesome congregation that you are. May you always be so.

Blessings,
Pastor Elaine

THANK YOU

Dear Friends, as we embark on a new year with hope that we will soon be putting the devastating effects of the pandemic behind us, I am compelled to reflect back on this past year.

When I resumed the role of Director of Music and Organist, few of us at the time could have foreseen how the world would change and how the church would change with it. Throughout this ordeal, however, Zwingli has been blessed with stable and inspiring clergy and staff and remarkable parishioners dedicated to the church and its mission in life. I have seen this with our family of church musicians including the Bell Choir who have found a way to continue to safely meet and provide musical offerings to the service, regardless of its virtual format. I have seen this, too, in Jim and Joey Bush and others, who serve as Cantors to lead the music, and to many members of the Choir who have found ways of contributing their talents to continue the musical offerings of hope and praise even when we can't meet in person.

Especially over this holiday season, I received many cards and gifts, some even from anonymous "music lovers". I also received many words of thanks and encouragement and these, too have been inspirational. To all those who have provided their talents, cards, gifts and words of encouragement, this is a sincere thank you. I feel fortunate and blessed to be associated with Zwingli and I look forward to continuing our music ministry together as we see light in the end of the tunnel, and a vision forward.

*Yours in Christ,
Steve Emery*

Healthy Moment

Improve That Body 2021

by Karen Hosler Kispert, NSCA-CPT, ACE-CGFI

"You formed my inward parts; you covered me in my mother's womb. I will praise You, for I am fearfully and wonderfully made." Psalm 139:13-14:

If you make New Year's resolutions, it's likely that at least one of them has to do with improving yourself physically, such as losing weight or exercising more. These resolutions are a lot easier to think up than to put into practice! But that's not because you aren't motivated, or are lazy, or love to eat too much, or any one of the many other ways many of us end up shaming ourselves. Physical improvement is so hard for so many of us because it involves a change of mind and change of behavior that must persist for a long period of time. In addition, if you have very low metabolism which can be due to body type or hormonal deficiency such as an underactive thyroid gland, are an emotional eater, or now or in the past have had a food addiction or eating disorder – or (like me) all three of these! – weight loss (or gain if you are underweight) is especially hard. But -- the good news is that our bodies do adapt to change and – believe it or not – there is delight and joy as we see and feel the improvement. Then there is the delight on your doctor's face when your blood work proves that you've changed!

Do you know what a calorie is? It is not what makes you fat. A calorie is a unit of energy. If you feed your body more calories than it expends in energy, you will gain weight. Moving more and eating foods lower in calories but higher in nutritional value will cause you to expend more calories than you eat, resulting in weight loss.

This short article is an introduction to tips to help you start on the path to physical improvement.

1. Drink more water. Try adding slices of fruit or cucumber to your water, or drink flavored seltzer water that has neither sugar nor sugar substitute.
2. Eat less sugar. Since sugary foods are usually paired with saturated fat, this is a win-win.

3. Drink less sugar. This includes fruit juice – eat the fruit, don't drink the juice. Fruit has more fiber and minerals and fewer calories than juice.
4. Consume fewer sugar substitutes.
5. Eat more whole foods and less processed foods, including fruit, vegetables, whole grains, and nuts.
6. Move more. Walk more. When you need to sit for an extended period of time, stand up and stretch and walk around for a few minutes every hour. Especially since COVID shut-in time, there are many printed and online resources for bodyweight exercises and stretches to do at home. Set a goal of 300 minutes of movement per week – 5 hours –which is less than 45 minutes per day.
7. Practice good posture: Feet, hips, and torso facing forward; torso raised out of the hips, shoulders back and down, abdominal muscles and gluteus muscles somewhat engaged, neck and spine neutral.
8. Get enough sleep! During sleep muscles get stronger and weight loss occurs.

Finally, beware of fad “diets” that promise a weekly weight loss of greater than about 2 pounds. Instead of the word “diet,” which people usually refer to as “going on a diet,” I prefer “nutrition,” which has the positive connotations of health, choice, and life-long commitment. Any eating plan will result in weight loss if it focuses on fewer calories eaten than expended. U.S. News has helpfully evaluated many popular “diets:”

<https://health.usnews.com/wellness/food/slideshows/best-diets-overall>

I committed to nutrition, movement, and physical strength 5 ½ years ago, and view this as an act of worship and gratitude. I have fallen short of my ideal many times, but have experienced steady progress. With God's help, here's to a healthier, fitter, stronger 2021!

ONA

During December 2020 and January 21, we offered three Adult Elective classes which focused on covenants. We explained what a covenant is and why it is important. We showed examples of covenants from other ONA churches and then began to determine how to write our own covenant that would welcome and affirm ALL.

The next step is to create a Covenant Creation Committee (CCC) to begin the process of building our own covenant. Please watch your bulletins and monthly mailings for more information as this unfolds.

And be sure to read our year-end report. It showcases the educational opportunities we offered throughout 2020 on the importance of becoming an open and affirming church.

"The Slave in the Parsonage: An 18th Century Fight for Freedom" presented by Rev. Dr. Deborah Rahn Clemens.

Join us to hear the true story of a man owned, along with his family, by none other than a local Montgomery County church pastor in colonial Pennsylvania. He fought for freedom for himself and his loved ones 100 years before the Civil War. Against all odds, Gideon Moor challenged the system and won. SUNDAY SCHOOL CHRISTMAS MISSION

A very special thank you to everyone who participated in our Angel Tree gift collection for the youth at Bethany Children's Home. It certainly was different shopping on-line for Bethany, but we know they greatly appreciated receiving gifts without concern about spreading COVID. We also had a nice collection of items brought to the church that were delivered by Tony and Betsy Villareal. Thanks so much. The folk at Bethany were thrilled by the gifts that helped to provide the youth at Bethany Children's Home a very special Christmas.

MISSIONS

ADVENT MISSION PROJECT REPORT

The 2020 Advent project was collecting items for Last Chance Ranch that rescues all kinds of animals from kittens to horses. Items donated by the congregation from the Wish List included canned and dry dog and cat food, leashes and collars, boxes of tissues, rolls of paper towels, office supplies, band aids and gauze, dish detergent, laundry detergent, old cloth towels and a check from a member. Last Chance Ranch was truly appreciative of the donations. The Missioners thank you for supporting this project.

The Missioners have selected Doctors Without Borders (DWB) as the recipient of a special Lenten Mission Offering for their outstanding work during this COVID-19 pandemic.

Doctors Without Borders are responding to the coronavirus emergency on multiple fronts—caring for patients, offering health education and mental health support, and providing training for vital infection control measures in health facilities around the world. DWB is working with local authorities in many of the countries where they have medical projects to help prepare for the impact of COVID-19. A key priority is to keep their regular medical programs running for the tens of thousands of patients and extremely vulnerable communities they help support. This pandemic threatens the lives of people around the world and presents even greater risks in countries with weak or fragile health systems.

- In the United States, DWB provided hands-on support, technical advice, wellness support, and training on IPC measures in more than 80 long-term care facilities in Texas and Michigan from late May to August. In the southwest, they worked with local officials and health care workers from the Navajo Nation and Pueblo peoples to address needs related to COVID-19. Across Puerto Rico, DWB provided primary care consultations in homes and clinics to people with no access to medical services. The team supported 22 health facilities across the island and helped distribute over 30,000 items of protective equipment, as well as offering hand hygiene and COVID-19 health education workshops to high-risk groups.

Envelopes are available in the vestibule or forward your check made payable to Zwingli UCC and marked Doctors Without Borders to the church office.

CHRISTMAS FUND APPEAL

Thank you to everyone who donated to the Christmas Fund. $615 was received from the congregation to support this mission. The Missioners sincerely appreciate your participation. Your generosity is greatly appreciated.

KNOCKED DOWN THAT COUNTS, BUT HOW MANY TIMES YOU GET BACK UP.

A Message from Kate Saurman

I kick-boxed for several years in high school and the above quote always sustained me through training. Fighting here in Brazil, weather MMA, ju-jitsu or capoeira are core to culture. Capoeira is a type of martial art that looks like dancing. It was first practiced by slaves on plantations in Brazil because it allowed them to gather in “celebration” while actually training for battle and planning their freedom. I love the symbolism behind this sport. In 2020 boxing found its way back into my life and served as a constant reminder to persevere. Corona numbers are growing quickly again here in Recife. We have 12 teenagers in the safe house and 8 infants, 4 of which are currently covid positive and in and out of the hospital. Schools have been closed here since April and so the days have been full planning activities to keep our very large family sane. One of these activities is boxing. I have been helping with translation for the classes both in the safe house and the gym. This time has become for all of us, a meditation on resilience; not only of the resilience that inherently exists inside each of us, but that Christ has once and for all overcome the enemy. We can take hits, and we can get back up. We may have been victimized, but we are not victims. We carry the victory of Jesus within us. As always the girls teach me the most.

We had in our care this year, a 16-year-old girl who had arrived paralyzed from the neck down due to a shooting. It was a miracle that she survived at all. Yet even more shocking is that the baby she was carrying survived as well. However, she went from being a healthy teenager to completely reliant on our staff and missionaries for her every need. It was incredibly challenging for her and the intense physical therapy she began was beyond painful. In the beginning she could not even hold up her own head. The doctors did not know if any movement would return to her body due to the bullet damage.

Yet this girl has the fiercest and bravest smile I have ever seen. And what marked my heart more than anything else was the simple fact that she chose every day to smile despite what she had suffered. There were days I could not look at her without crying under conviction at her joy and resolve. How? Only God - by Sept she was able to take a few steps with support, and by October she could move her hand and arms well enough to feed herself again. These advances were miracles and we are hopeful that she will have the strength to hold her baby when he is born! I wanted to share this testimony as a reminder of both Christ's healing and our resilience. Christmas this year, was for me in Recife, different, as I'm sure it was for most of you. I spent the day reminding myself over and over why it is that we hold onto hope. Why it is that God chose to be born into a human family. Why he chose to live on earth and suffer with us? He didn't shy away from pain, He felt it all and walked confidently forward, knowing that his Father would have the last word. My prayer for is that each of you would be overcome with this same hope and expectation of God's faithfulness as we move into 2021.

Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year to you all.

Love,
Kate
