*I seek the enlargement of my heart that there may be room for Peace. Already there is room for chaos...But the need of my heart is room for Peace: Peace of mind that inspires singleness of purpose; Peace of heart that quiets all fears and uproots all panic; Peace of spirit that filters through all the confusions and robs them of their power....Therefore, before God, I seek the enlargement of my heart at this moment, that there may be room for Peace. (Howard Thurman, Meditations of the Heart, Friends United Press)*

*Sin is inevitable, but all shall be well, and all shall be well, and all manner of thing shall be well. (Julian of Norwich, in The Complete Julian of Norwich, Fr. John-Julian, Paraclete Press)*

February was Black History Month. Although the observance evolved over many years dating back to 1926, the month-long celebration gained traction in the 70's, first at Kent State, and then throughout the country at the urging of Gerald Ford. The month is a focus on learning about and honoring the history, accomplishments, and contributions of Black Americans, as well as people and events connected to the African diaspora. Howard Thurman, author, theologian, philosopher, and mystic was a key figure in that history, particularly the Civil Rights Movement, when he was a mentor to Martin Luther King, Jr., and other leaders. His contributions in so many aspects of life are remarkable, and the depth of his thought and faith have influenced countless people and cultures.

In March, we celebrate Women's History Month. This commemoration also began in the 70's (1978) as "Women's History Day" in Sonoma County, California, and later became a month-long observance in 1987. Historian, professor and women's rights champion, Dr. Gerda Lerner was the prime organizer of the occasion to discover, celebrate and honor the contributions of women in history and contemporary society. Julian of Norwich was a 14th century mystic and anchoress from England who wrote Revelations of Divine Love (or Showings), recognized as one of the earliest surviving works in English by a woman author using her own name. Though she may not be a hero of women's history like other contemporary figures, her work, a spiritual masterpiece, has influenced many over centuries and in many cultures and faith traditions. Some of her theology, especially thoughts focused on a God of love and reconciliation as a way to address human problems and condition, directly countered the otherwise male theology of her day, which focused on judgement and damnation.

Both Thurman and Norwich were people of deep faith and prayer. They knew first-hand the meaning of sacrifice and service. Daily and life-long spiritual practices were an important part of their lives. They both lived, respectively, through tumultuous times that were often cruel and harsh for blacks and women. In my mind, their lives are wonderful examples of how to fully embrace the Lenten journey, in which we strive to tell the truth about ourselves and life and deepen our relationship to God and others. The quotes above focus our attention on critical aspects of our journey - enlarging our hearts of faith, and relying on the grace and mercy of a God who will make all things well.

Of course, just as we should celebrate, promote, be thankful for and honor black and women's lives every day, we should also carry our Lenten practices and journey beyond a mere forty days. But, in the meantime, I invite you to worship and prayer, study (join the Lenten Book study!!) and service in this season of Lent, as we move toward Easter, and the celebration of new life promised in Jesus.

LENTEEN BOOK STUDY STARTS WEDNESDAY MARCH 1st

Looking for a great way to engage more deeply in your Lenten journey? Emmanuel Lutheran Church and Zwingli United Church of Christ in Souderton invite you to a five-week Lenten study.

Sign up here:

<https://bit.ly/soudylent2023>

The New Testament doesn't tell us much about how the Lord's Supper was observed in the earliest church, but stories about tables are everywhere in the Gospels. Jesus tells stories about banquets and he goes to a lot of dinner parties. He eats with religious leaders and shady characters. He feeds a hungry crowd and tells his followers to do the same.

In this study, we invite you to explore some of the stories about Jesus and tables, and through them, reflect on how tables shape our identities as followers of Christ. Join us on this Lenten journey, as we go deeper in our relationships with God, Jesus, and each other.

We will meet on Wednesdays, and there will be two cohorts, one at 1 PM and the other at 7 PM. Our 1 PM cohort will meet weekly at Broad Street Grind for lunch and conversation. Our 7 PM cohort will gather weekly at 6 PM for dinner (soup and bread dinner) followed by book study at 7 PM at Zwingli United Church of Christ. The evening cohort will also be shared via Zoom.

We also invite you to bring items for Emmanuel Lutheran's EMeal program throughout the weeks as part of your Lenten practice. Items needed include the following:

Cans of Tuna	Instant Oatmeal
Cans of Soup	Yogurt Cups
Express Mac & Cheese	Cheese Sticks
Apples/Oranges	Canned Meals
Gluten Free Meals	Sweet or Savory Snacks
Juice Boxes	Ramen Noodle Packages

We hope you'll join us for this awesome Lenten study, as we dine together for the season of Lent. Please sign up by going to the link at the top of the article.

CIRCLE OF SISTERS BOOK CLUB

Our next selection will be "When We Were on Fire" by Addie Zierman.

In the strange, us-versus-them Christian subculture of the 1990s, a person's faith was measured by how many WWJD bracelets she wore and whether he had kissed dating goodbye.

Evangelical poster child Addie Zierman wore three bracelets asking what Jesus would do. She also led two Bible studies and listened exclusively to Christian music. She was on fire for God and unaware that the flame was dwindling—until it burned out.

Addie chronicles her journey through church culture, first love, and her unprepared entrance into marriage. When she drops out of her church and nearly her marriage, it is in the depths of a sea of tequila and depression. She isn't sure she'll ever go back.

When We Were on Fire is a funny, heartbreaking story of untangling oneself from what is expected; to arrive at faith not bound by tradition or current church fashion.

Addie looks for what lasts when nothing else in our faith seems worth keeping. It's a story for doubters, cynics, and anyone who has felt alone in church.

-From Steve Emery and Laurie Reynolds

Recently, during a Monday night football game, Damar Hamlin from the Buffalo Bills, made a tackle. When he got up to walk away, he collapsed on the field. First responders began life-saving measures while he was still on the field. This incident on live national television was a wake-up call for us all.

Damar realizes that emergency measures saved his life on the field that day. With the Buffalo Bills' support, he has partnered with the American Heart Association to encourage people to learn CPR to help save people's lives.

Most cardiac events requiring emergency care occur outside of the hospital. Knowing what to do will help you to be a hero to save lives. There are over 350,000 sudden cardiac arrests annually in the United States – at least once every two minutes. Cardiac arrest can happen anywhere, often at home, work, or play. And the victim is likely to be someone you know and love. Every minute resuscitation is delayed, a victim's chance of survival decreases 10%.

Sudden cardiac arrest occurs when an electrical malfunction of the heart causes it to suddenly stop beating properly, ceasing blood flow to the victim's brain, lungs, and other organs. Signs of sudden cardiac arrest can include heart palpitations, collapse, no pulse, no breathing, and loss of consciousness. Using an automated external defibrillator and performing CPR can dramatically improve the chances of survival from sudden cardiac arrest. Unfortunately, many victims who need CPR and an AED do not receive early defibrillation, which can make the difference between life and death.

Zwingli has an Automatic External Defibrillator (AED) located above the lost and found basket in the atrium, in the cloakroom. It is a neon green color, sitting inside a black carrying case. An AED is designed to guide bystanders, coworkers, and other lay rescuers through a rescue using voice, text, or illustrations. When an emergency occurs and you observe any of the symptoms mentioned above, follow these steps:

1. Call 9-1-1 immediately.
2. Check to see if the victim is struggling to breathe and if they have a pulse. If the victim is unresponsive, start performing hands-only CPR immediately to maintain blood flow to vital organs. To do hands-on compressions, place one hand in the center of the chest, and place your other hand on top, interlacing your fingers. Then press hard (chest should compress 2 inches) and fast (100-120 beats per minute).
3. Note: The American Heart Association prefers CPR with breaths for rescuers trained in either Heart Saver or Healthcare Provider CPR. However, they advocate hands-only CPR for people without training.
4. While doing compressions, ask someone to retrieve the AED. When the AED arrives, remove the lid.

Open the victim's shirt and expose the chest. If the chest is wet, dry it with a piece of clothing. Attach the electrode pads to the victim, following the AED guidance. The electrode pads have an adhesive backing that will stick firmly to the victim's bare chest. The AED will tell you if there is not a good connection. It may be necessary to remove hair to obtain a connection. (Razor and scissors included with AED) Once connected, the AED will automatically analyze the victim's heart rhythm. Do not touch the victim while the AED performs the analysis. Not all sudden cardiac arrest victims require a shock immediately. The AED will let you know what to do next. It may advise you to press a button to administer a shock. Before administering the shock, announce that all those assisting must not touch the patient and to stand clear.

5. After a shock is delivered, the AED will instruct you to continue performing CPR. The AED will measure the rate and depth of your compressions and will instruct you to adjust what you are doing to deliver high-quality CPR. Follow the AED prompts to improve CPR quality.
6. Continue administering CPR and following the prompts on the AED until emergency personnel arrives or you are too exhausted to continue.

When a person with cardiac arrest is treated using an AED, their chance of survival increases by 50%. AED's are designed to walk a lay person through how to use it with step-by-step instructions. Your quick intervention as a bystander may save that person's life.

Here are some ways you can help yourself to be prepared:

1. Refer to the American Heart Association's web site for information and tutorials : Online CPR/AED Course Certification | Introduction to Course \(cpraedcourse.com\).
2. American Red Cross web site for online training. Red Cross Training | Take a Class | Red Cross)
3. You Tube has several video's demonstrating CPR and AED's.
4. Enroll in a CPR/AED training course near you.
5. Attend Adult Elective on March 26, 2023 to learn more about Zwingli's AED.

Each one of us hopes we will never have to resuscitate someone. However, being prepared to help a loved one, friend, neighbor, or stranger will help us be the hero within to save a life.

heavy rains and storms in the midwest have resulted in many families needing even the most basic equipment and supplies to move toward recovery.

CWS ships tens of thousands of kits, blankets and buckets throughout the year to flood and disaster survivors to help families and communities get on with their lives.

Starting in February and running thru the Lenten season, Zwingli will be helping with the effort to replenish Church World Services inventory of Emergency Cleanup Buckets.

You and/or your family can join us in this project in several ways:

1. Go find a new or clean bucket with a sealable lid (A few buckets are available on the CWS Emergency Cleanup Bucket display table in the atrium.) and fill it with the items listed below. It's a lot like a Treasure Hunt!

You will need to find exact sizes and quantities, please or we can't get the lid on!

2. Purchase items that can be used toward making a completed bucket. There will be a "Here's what we still need" Chart also located on the bucket display table.

3. Make a donation marked "CWS Buckets". Envelopes can be found in the sanctuary card racks and in the atrium on the Missioners table.
